Fourth of July

Day of glory! Welcome day!
 Freedom's banners greet thy ray:
 See! how cheerfully they play
 With thy morning breeze.
 On the rocks where pilgrims
 knelt,
 On the heights where squadrons
 wheeled,
 When a tyrant's thunder pealed
 O'er the trembling seas.

God of armies! did thy stars
 On their courses smite his cars;
 Blast his arm and wrest his bare
 From the heaving tide?
 On our standard, lo! they burn,
 And, when days like this return,
 Sparkle o'er the soldier's urn
 Who for freedom died.

God of peace, whose spirit fills
 All the echoes of our hills,
 All the murmur of our rills,
 Now the storm is o'er,
 O let freedom be our sons,
 And let future Washingtons
 Rise, to lead the valiant ones
 Till there's war no more!

—JOHN PIERPONT.

GRAND MONUMENT IN DANGER

Obelisk That Marks Earliest Revolutionary Battle Must Not Be Allowed to Crumble.

The people of New England are much concerned over the report that Bunker Hill monument is crumbling, and is in danger of a fate like that of the Campanile in Venice which collapsed a dozen years ago.

The granite obelisk known as Bunker Hill monument, which commemorates the earliest real battle of the Revolutionary war, is the most conspicuous object that catches the eye as one approaches Boston by sea. The shaft is 30 feet square at the base and is 220 feet in height. Inside is a hollow cone around which winds a spiral flight of stone steps by which ascent is made to the top, where there is an observatory. The monument was begun in 1825 when the cornerstone was laid by General Lafayette and when Webster delivered the famous oration that is familiar to every schoolboy. Because of a lack of funds it remained unfinished for nearly 20 years; then, largely through the efforts of American women, the necessary money was raised and the complete structure was dedicated in 1843.

Efforts are being made to re-enforce the crumbling granite in hopes that the monument may remain a Mecca for many generations of patriotic Americans.

Lafayette—"The Beechwood."

Etymologists have discovered the origin of the famous name which during the recent years of war has become dearer than ever to Frenchmen and Americans alike. Lafayette came from the part of France known as Auvergne. He was born at Chavagnac, near Brioude, and his ancestral home stands not far from the village of Alre-la-Fayette. In this part of the country the word "fayette" means a wood of "fayards," and "fayards" comes from the Latin word "fagus," which in the dialect of the country has come to mean "beech" or "beech wood." Etymologically, then, the word "Lafayette" is the equivalent of "The Beechwood."

AFTER SPACE GRAFTERS
 This is an 8-page paper regularly, seven times 12. We never saw a 1-page paper but we've seen some mighty thin-brained space hogs. A space hog is an animal who wants to skin the public by working the newspaper to print the details of his skin game as big news, and he generally wants the front page and grunts when he doesn't get it. If the Tribune went over bodily to the space hogs we'd have a circulation on a par with the papers that do that sort of thing—Knut Tribune.

BIG ELANDS.

"We're the big elands and we're as large as any antelopes going," said Mr. Eland.

"Are we as large as any antelopes standing still?" asked Mrs. Eland, grinning at Mr. Eland.

"Now, Mrs. Eland," he said, "you know what I mean and you can't deny it."

"Ah," said Mrs. Eland, "we might be very much smaller when we were still. We mightn't spread our wings so much, so to speak."

"I'm glad, Mrs. Eland," said Mr. Eland, "that you said 'so to speak,' for you might make people horribly confused who didn't know much about elands."

"Are there such people?" asked Mrs. Eland.

"Of course, there are," said Mr. Eland, "and they're really bright people in every other way."

"It's hard to believe," said Mrs. Eland.

"Well, look at it from your standpoint," said Mr. Eland.

"What's my standpoint?" asked Mrs. Eland. "A kind foot or a horn or what?"

"Your point of view," said Mr. Eland.

"My view isn't pointed. My view is nice and round or square or something—but it's not pointed."

"I mean," said Mr. Eland, "that you should look at the fact that people don't know much about elands from the way that elands don't know much about people."

"Oh, yes, that is so," said Mrs. Eland.

"And so some people mightn't know but what elands had wings."

"Gracious," said Mrs. Eland, "wouldn't they know I was only joking and that, of course, we hadn't wings, that we were great, big, beautiful animals and not birds at all?"

"I think they would," said Mr. Eland. "But it's well not to joke and make folks not understand at all what you mean. Of course, you did say, 'so to speak,' and that was a great help."

"Well," Mrs. Eland said, "I'm glad to hear that much. Anyway, as you say, we're the big elands and we're as large as any antelopes going—that's a great help." She grinned at Mr. Eland.

"You're such a tease, Mrs. Eland, such a tease. Especially today. Something must have gotten into you."

"Something did," she said. "My food!"

"One thing," laughed Mr. Eland, "is that what I've been saying you can't deny."

"Just what do you mean when you say I cannot deny it?" asked Mrs. Eland.

"I mean," said Mr. Eland, "that you can't help but say that you know what I mean."

"Oh, yes, perhaps that is so," said Mrs. Eland.

"Perhaps?" questioned Mr. Eland.

"Dear me, how funny!" said Mrs. Eland. "Then I will say it most certainly is so. I do understand you. There, how does that suit you?"

"To perfection, absolutely and entirely," said Mr. Eland.

"You use three words where one would do if you were thinking of saving time," said Mrs. Eland.

"I'm not thinking of saving time," said Mr. Eland. "Time makes no difference to me. Some rush and hurry and try to save a minute or two or a second or two or an hour or two, or something or two—but I don't bother. Not here in the zoo."

"My meals are given to me when I am hungry and so I needn't worry. They say we're rare now and they like us and take good care of us though I will say that they even do that about creatures not rare at all. I am from eastern Africa and you are from southern Africa, and that's finer than to be home products!"

"But to return to the words I used. They're friendly, chummy words, they are. And they don't mind doing a favor for me like that and making my sentence very fine."

"Oh," said Mrs. Eland. "How nice of them."

"Very," said Mr. Eland, shaking his great head with its two fine, handsome horns.

Mrs. Linda Harrod Endorses Chamberlain's Tablets.
 "I suffered for years with stomach trouble and tried everything I heard of but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them from our druggist. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness and pain in the stomach after eating. Since taking two bottles I can eat anything I want without distress," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Ft. Wayne, Ind.
